Mercenaries under suspicion about the explosions at the Boston marathon

Material posted: (/en/team/42)Publication date: 21-04-2013

Yesterday on the website Infowars.com published pictures of people, which the authors attributed to the Navy SEAL (special operations forces of the U.S. Navy) in the civil field equipment. These people lurked in ambush at the finish line of the Boston marathon, where the explosion of two bombs killed three people and hundreds of people were injured.

As the journalist writes Anthony Gucciardi from StoryLeak.com performing an independent investigation, it became clear that these people – contractors Craft International – a private military company such as Blackwater. Two mercenaries had a standard field clothing – the military khaki pants, combat boots, black jacket, and was carrying suspicious backpacks. But what really gives the assignment to Craft International, this cap with the symbol of "the Punisher".

Above left: a suspect in the bombing in Boston, top right: cap Craft on the counter in their shop, downstairs in the same cap – Craft founder and ex-serving Navy SEAL Chris Kyle, now deceased

Gucciardi writes:

There was a lot of discussion about two people with headphones and in the equipment of the military type, seen at the Boston marathon, but it turns out they are members of a private military security firm Craft International.

This company was modeled on Blackwater, former Navy SEAL sniper Chris Kyle as a modern organization for military training.

Either these serious-looking guys are just big fans of military contractors and want to emulate them, or they are true mercenaries. In any case, they look very suspiciously at the scene, being clearly in civilian clothes marching.

Kraft explains the origin of the skull on the logo:

The history of the skull logo of Craft based on several significant episodes in the life of Chris Kyle and his service to this great country, but mostly it's a tribute to fallen comrades. Being a part of SEAL Team 3, Chris and his mates drew the same skull on the gear, to inspire fear to the enemy. The crosshair symbolizes his time of life, given the sniper rifle, and has the shape of a Templar cross as a symbol of his faith. Finally, the crosshair is on his right eye is in honor of marine Ryan Jobe from SEAL, who was severely wounded by a shot in the right eye during combat operations in Iraq in 2006.

After a successful "Navy seals" (Navy SEALs) rescue and the liberation of captain Richard Phillips on Easter morning 2009, a local reporter asked Ryan Jobe question whether the use of Navy SEALs against Somali pirates excessive use of force. The answer was: "whatever you told your mom that violence solves problems". Ryan Jobe died in December of the same year from complications after reconstructive surgery.

The Craft skull is a daily reminder to us all of the sacrifices of brave soldiers, and what a victory over evil.

In addition, was spotted a third man, dressed the same way and crossed the border finish line, which was holding something like a remote control.
